(Virtual) Career Fair Season

It's Career Fair Season again at the U, with seven virtual fairs and expos planned for students who are looking for everything from a work-study job, to an internship, to their first career position. While the season will look a little different this semester – with all the events being held virtually through Handshake's video-based platform – the goal is the same as always: to connect students with the employment opportunities they need to get through school, explore their interests, and get their career off to a great start.

Student Affairs offices can support this goal in three ways this Fall: 1) Make sure the students who engage with your offices know about the upcoming virtual fairs (dates and links below) and pre-register for the sessions they are interested in (registration is required!); 2) Encourage those students to attend a Career Fair Prep or STEM Resume Review & Mock Interview session through Handshake before the fairs; and 3) refer students to the Career & Professional Development Center's website for all the career coaching, programming, resources, and events that are available to them.

CPDC is here to help students with every step of their journey from student to professional - including all the wonderful peaks and valleys they'll have to traverse along the way.
