When Students Turn to You

A Faculty Guide to Helping Students Connect with Campus Communities, Resources, and Support

SUPPORT & RESOURCES

Meeting Students' Unique Needs

Every student's journey is unique, and some may benefit from specialized resources and support throughout their college experience. Student Affairs offers programs and services that help students navigate life's responsibilities, overcome barriers, and access the resources they need to succeed.

Faculty can help by connecting students with the campus resources that best meet their individual needs.

Resources to Recommend

When students aren't sure where to begin, these resources provide a trusted starting point and connect them with the support they need.

Peer Well-being Navigators Center for Campus Wellness

A great starting point for students who aren't sure how to address health and wellness concerns. Trained peer navigators help students identify resources and connect with the campus services that best meet their needs.

Basic Needs Collective Center for Campus Wellness

A centralized referral hub that helps students access food, housing, financial, and other basic needs support.

EmpowerED Canvas Course Student Health & Wellness

A self-paced, interactive course that connects students with campus resources while building the skills they need to make informed decisions about their health. Topics covered include managing stress, understanding health insurance, how to access resources, and more.

Walk & Talk with Volley University Counseling Center

A casual and relaxing opportunity to connect with Volley, the University Counseling Center's certified therapy dog, and his handler while learning about mental health resources

ENGAGEMENT & BELONGING

Helping Students Find Connection

Students who feel connected to campus are more likely to persist, succeed academically, and graduate. Student Affairs fosters community and belonging while helping students build durable skills through leadership opportunities, student organizations, and campus traditions.

Faculty can help by encouraging students to get involved and participate in opportunities that help them build meaningful connections.
