Volunteer Management Training Series – Topic 1 Pre and Post

Brief description of program / project:
This survey was a joint collaboration between SLCC’s Thayne Center, Westminster’s Civic Engagement Center, United Way and the Bennion Center. Each collaborator applied for, and was awarded, a grant from the Utah Commission on Service and Volunteerism (formally known as the Utah Commission on Volunteers) to conduct a training series for our collective community partners. It was suggested, for grant reporting purposes, to have pre and post-tests to see and what our community partner trainees were learning from our sessions.

Who was asked to complete survey:
We asked all of the participants of this session, but not all of them took the post-exam (left early or just skipped it).

Response Rate: Our pre-test noted 20, so almost 33%. The rest either left early or simply skipped it. Post-test only had 7 respondents.

Administration Type: URL to survey.

Summary of Key Findings:
- 6/7 respondents said they would join us for another session, while 1 said they were undecided.
  No one said they would not return. This is positive and what we hoped for.
- The respondents, generally, answered the questions correctly and with few errors, after the training session was complete.

Actions Taken: We decided that this might not be the best method to discern what our participants are learning due to the low response rate. Efforts to ensure high response rate (e.g., to only give parking validations after completion) were not sufficient.
