Safe Zone Training

Number of Respondents: 329 (pre) and 319 (post)

Summary of Key Findings:
The surveys show a general increase in knowledge based on the differences between the pre and post evaluations. Most responses were positive with very few negative. Positive responses included the dialogue that was able to happen amongst the group as well as a nice presentation of terminology and history. Negative responses included thoughts about the amount of time (both too long and too short) as well as more time needed for ally building.

Actions Taken:
The time cannot be helped as an official safe zone training needs to be 3 hours. We have made shorter trainings available for groups, but they aren’t considered safe zone trainings. We have incorporated more ally building exercises during the second half of the training as well.
